ACU-Serve Corp., a provider of billing and collection services to home medical and durable medical equipment companies, announces that co-founder Jim Knight is the new chief executive officer, a role he has shared with co-founders Angie Barone and Tim Barone, who have decided to pursue other opportunities.

Joining Knight in leading ACU-Serve is new business partner Tom Meadows. Meadows has provided IT consulting services and software development for human resource information systems through several entrepreneurial ventures, most recently Anglebar Solutions in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

Additional new staff joining the ACU-Serve team include:

- Stephanie Greene, Esq., who will head up the Auditing and Consulting Division. She will counsel clients in billing audits and appeals, as well as other issues related to compliance. Greene previously served as general counsel and senior client advisor for The Audit Team and Harrington Management Group in Canton, Ohio.
- Samantha Haynam, RN, MSN, and Yvette Nugent are new account managers. Haynam previously served as director of Aultman Home Medical Supply and on the adjunct faculty of Aultman College of Nursing and Health Services, both in Canton, Ohio. Nugent most recently worked at Pacific Pulmonary Services as director of Compliance – Reimbursement Rules and Regulations.

“Over the past year, we saw many changes in the HME/DME industry, which are expected to continue in 2014” said Jim Knight, CEO. “These additions to our staff will further position ACU-Serve Corp. to respond to the many challenges and changes our clients face. We are very excited to bring this outstanding array of talent to our team.”
